

Ted Lithgow, PhD
President
MeadWestvaco Healthcare
MeadWestvaco

Dr. Ted Lithgow is the president of MWV Healthcare. Dr. Lithgow is a psychopharmacologist trained at The City University of New York and Albert Einstein College of Medicine in Bronx, New York.

Ted is primarily responsible for developing, setting direction, and facilitating commercial strategy and implementation for all MWV products targeted for pharmaceutical customers and healthcare professionals.

Ted was formerly senior commercial lead and representative of global prescription pharmaceutical (GPB) development programs, with additional responsibility for all cross-customer and divisional initiatives and processes at Schering-Plough. He was a member of the Global Business Management Team, the corporation's Research Leadership Committee, the Exploratory Development Committee, and Pharmaceutical Leadership Board governing bodies.

Prior to that he was vice president of commercial operations and emerging technologies at Pharmacia Corporation (Peapack, NJ). He was a director of new products marketing, global CNS, psychiatry and neurology at Wyeth Corporation (Philadelphia, Pa) and previous director, US women's health care, prescription therapeutics, contraception, and reproductive disorders. His OTC experience includes R&D project management, project leader of the Zantac 75 OTC Launch Team for the former Warner Wellcome Division of Pfizer Pharmaceuticals; senior product manager for Lubriderm Lotion brands and Neosporin First Aid; and team lead of Improved Roloids Team, Adams Brands, at the same company.

Dr. Lithgow currently lives in Bridgewater, NJ with his wife and four children.